

Correction for Majumdar et al., “Absence of Receptor Guanylyl Cyclase C Enhances Ileal Damage and Reduces Cytokine and Antimicrobial Peptide Production during Oral Salmonella enterica Serovar Typhimurium Infection”

Shamik Majumdar,<sup>a</sup> Vishwas Mishra,<sup>b</sup> Somesh Nandi,<sup>b</sup> Mudabir Abdullah,<sup>b</sup> Anaxee Barman,<sup>b</sup> Abinaya Raghavan,<sup>a</sup> Dipankar Nandi,<sup>a</sup> Sandhya S. Visweswariah<sup>b</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Department of Biochemistry, Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru, India

<sup>b</sup>Department of Molecular Reproduction, Development and Genetics, Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru, India

Volume 86, no. 5, e00799-17, 2018, <https://doi.org/10.1128/IAI.00799-17>. Page 7: The PkgII panel of Fig. 4 should appear as given in this correction.

Citation Majumdar S, Mishra V, Nandi S, Abdullah M, Barman A, Raghavan A, Nandi D, Visweswariah SS. 2019. Correction for Majumdar et al., “Absence of receptor guanylyl cyclase C enhances ileal damage and reduces cytokine and antimicrobial peptide production during oral Salmonella enterica serovar Typhimurium infection.” Infect Immun 87:e00495-19. <https://doi.org/10.1128/IAI.00495-19>.

Copyright © 2019 American Society for Microbiology. All Rights Reserved.

Address correspondence to Sandhya S. Visweswariah, sandhya@iisc.ac.in.

Published 21 August 2019